

Henry has been given an ultimatum: The world will end in 144 days, or to stop it, Henry has to push a big, red button. But he isn't sure he wants to. He's been dealing with a myriad of family issues. And he's still grieving his late boyfriend. Wiping the slate clean sounds like a pretty good choice. But Henry is a scientist first. So he starts to look for the pros and cons in his life, weighing the pain and joy that surrounds him. Until he's left with the ultimate choice.

Arthur is only in New York for the summer. But if Broadway has taught him anything, it's that the universe can deliver a show-stopping romance when least expected. Ben thinks the universe needs to mind its own business. Because he wouldn't be on his way to the post office, carrying his ex-boyfriend's things. But when Arthur and Ben meet-cute at the post office, the universe has something in store for them. Maybe it's nothing. Or maybe it's everything.

As the tomboy daughter of the town's preacher, Billie has always struggled with fitting in. She'd rather wear sweats, build furniture, and get into trouble with her solid group of friends: Woods, Mash, Davey, Fifty, and Janie Lee. But when Janie Lee confesses to Billie that she's in love with Woods, Billie's filled with a nagging sadness. She realizes she's also in love with Woods...and maybe Janie Lee, too.

Three years ago, Tanner Scott's family relocated to Utah, a move that nudged the bisexual teen temporarily back into the closet. But with one semester of high school to go and out-of-state college calling his name, Tanner plans to coast through his remaining classes. But when his best friend dares him to take Provo High's prestigious Seminar, Tanner can't resist going against his better judgement, if only to prove to Autumn how silly the whole thing is. But four months is a long time. And it only takes one second for Tanner to notice Sebastian Brother.
